HISTORY

The University of Virginia was chartered in 1819 by the Commonwealth of Virginia upon the recommendation of Thomas Jefferson, third President of the United States and author of the Declaration of Independence. Classes were first held in 1825 and have met continuously since that time. All academic records of students who have ever enrolled at the University in Charlottesville or through current centers of the School of Continuing and Professional Studies are the responsibility of the Office of the University Registrar. The following institutions began as branches of the University of Virginia but now operate as separate institutions and maintain the academic records of students who were enrolled on those campuses when they were branches of the University of Virginia: George Mason University, Eastern Shore Community College, Central Virginia Community College, and Patrick Henry Community College. The University of Virginia's College at Wise is a branch of the University and maintains its own academic records.

ACCREDITATION

The University of Virginia is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. The Master of Landscape Architecture is accredited by the American Association of Landscape Architecture. The Curry School of Education and all of its programs to prepare school personnel are accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education. In addition, individual program specializations are accredited by such organizations as the American Speech, Language and Hearing Association, the National Athletic Training Association, and the Council for Exceptional Children. The McIntire School of Commerce and the Colgate Darden Graduate School of Business Administration are accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business. The School of Law is accredited by the American Bar Association and the American Association of Law Schools. Degree programs in the School of Engineering and Applied Science are accredited by the Accreditation Board of Engineering and Technology. The School of Nursing is accredited by the National League for Nursing and the Virginia State Board of Nursing. The chemistry and music programs in the College of Arts and Sciences are accredited by the American Chemical Society and the National Association of Schools of Music respectively. The M.D. degree in the School of Medicine is accredited by the Liaison Committee on Medical Education, representing the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical Association and the Executive Council of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

CREDIT

The value of each course is stated in terms of semester credits. A credit equals one classroom period of fifty minutes a week for a period of 15 weeks. One credit of laboratory work can equal one to four hours per week.

RELEASE OF TRANSCRIPT
